

The Sleeper then reviews the Diorama of his lived life, in every detail. Nothing is omitted. The soul is seen exactly as "it is". The tone intensifies, it not only judges the effects, but it perceives the causes of good or despicable actions: it is extremely painful. We sometimes realize that a small action of anger ruined the life of another person, that a charitable action on our part was only a surge of vanity or pride.

We find ourselves humiliated, ashamed in front of ourselves by a life riddled with small things... and we will also see, fortunately, that other little things in our life, disinterested, made out of affection or duty, will be the "little flowers of our soul"... It is said in symbolic language that they are the golden threads of our Dress of Resurrection.

Then comes the end of the "Second Sleep", when the Diorama of lived life has passed and revisited, that we have finally understood everything... that we have felt repentance for our mistakes, remorse for our mistakes, and also satisfaction for what has been done well, so we are ready to "wake up". One last understanding is that of our karmic estimate, our true mission on Earth.

And no awakening can be more blessed. Appeased, our thoughts enlightened by this long self-experience, we approach the Court of Judgment. That we thought, according to our beliefs, we were before the Throne of God, before the 42 Assessors of Egyptian Theology, in front of the Decision Bridge of the ancient Persians or in front of the Lords of Karma, the Principle is the same: it is our Soul who makes her confession and pronounces her own judgment in the light of the Truth, and who confirms the verdict. Nothing unfair, doctrinal, arbitrary, preconceived... Nothing: the Truth is ONE, but with thousands of facets.

Each soul then takes the place due to it, according to its vibratory plane. The highest will be found in the upper spheres, those who will not be able to withstand this blinding light will go down to find the mists and even the dark and thick fogs of the lower Astral. Everyone has their own place, as in earthly life.

However, either at the top or at the bottom, there will always be an opportunity to improve, to be able to evolve. Even in the lowest layers of the kingdom of shadows, there will always be "rays of light" for those whose repentance is sincere.

No punishment can be eternal. "Only the Lord belongs to the Absolute". It will only be at the Final Judgment, at Brahma Twilight, when the Cosmos has completed its Mission, when evil will no longer exist, that we can only say that the last chance has fled...
